10 ОТВЕТОВ

I realized that in my courses, I needed to shift the focus from control to student engagement, especially in the first classes, in order to rally the group. To do this, I will organize work in teams, and each time the participants in the teams will change, so the students will get to know their classmates better

Changes in my teaching after the courses:

1. Preparatory work in the form of revision of courses and their adaptation taking into account the perception of students in online mode,
2. determination of factors of negative and positive influence on the emotional presence of students
3. Reallocation of class time-alternation of lecture material with practical tasks, so you can maintain interest in the subject

I intend to use the kahoot and mind maps tools that the trainer talked about. They are perfect for accounting disciplines.

Nowadays students are used to online communication, so they gladly agree to replace traditional practice to new online instruments that help to make the learning process much more interesting, personalized and fun. This training gave me a push to use

6.3. Please write any other comments you might have about this training

An interesting course, live communication, the coach interacted with the audience in a very exciting way even in online terms

I really liked it, it is desirable to conduct such courses on a regular basis

It is useful to discuss current issues of online teaching with colleagues and learn from their experience. It is not always possible to do this in real life due to lack of time.

Thanks for the training!
